Katherine T. Weary

Born in Weatherford, TX. B.A. (history/minors english and political science), Texas A & M University 2001. Advanced International Affairs Certificate, Bush School of Government and Public Service at Texas A & M University 2002. Undergraduate Internship with The Office of George H. W. Bush in Houston, TX 1999-2001. Research Assistant, The U.S. Department of State 2001. M.A. (security policy studies concentrations in transnational security threats and national security policy) The Elliott School of International Affairs at The George Washington University 2005.

Served in the George W. Bush Administration in the Office of the Secretary at the U.S. Department of Education 2002-2005 in briefing, advance, and public affairs.

Supported offices at the U.S. Department of Homeland Security, as a Bearing Point contractor, including the Office of Intelligence Analysis assisting with intelligence workflow and requirements from 2005-2006.

Served as an Intelligence Analyst at the National Security Agency under the U.S. Department of Defense in analytical and technical roles from 2006-2015.

Directly supported the intelligence community's participation in National Security Council (NSC) meetings as an Integrated Middle East Analyst at the Office the Director of National Intelligence's (ODNI) National Intelligence Council under the National Intelligence Officer for the Near East from 2008-2009.

Graduated from the Intelligence Analyst Development Program at the National Cryptologic School, Ft. Meade, in 2009, completing coursework in telecommunications technologies, international relations, and terrorism.

Participated in the Intelligence Community Advanced Analytic Program both at the National Cryptologic School at Ft. Meade and the Kent School at CIA from 2011-15; gained expertise in analytics, structured analytic techniques, red teaming, community collaboration, approaches to critical thinking, and intelligence successes and failures analysis.

Crafted and taught a collection of courses on analysis for the Bush School of Government and Public Service including Analytic Tradecraft, Advanced Analytic Tradecraft, Briefing Tradecraft, and international affairs Capstone projects. Began teaching as a part-time lecturer in 2017 and was appointed full-time status as an Assistant Professor of the Practice in 2019.

Experience in international affairs, analytics, intelligence support to military and law enforcement community, counterintelligence, counterterrorism, international crime and narcotics, laws governing surveillance, technical collection systems; experience briefing policymakers; liaison and collaboration experience with all intelligence community agencies and the NSC.

Address: Bush School of Government and Public Service, Texas A & M University, College Station, TX 77843-420. ktweary@tamu.edu